LIVE WORK UNITS IN COURTYARD APARTMENT

- Courtyard apartment is trying to keep the same quality of life as living in a house by keeping the connection to sky and providing personal roof gardens. It also helps to keep the facade of city green.
- By providing an attached work space to each unit it makes it more affordable by eliminating the rent of an office and travelling expense in growing areas such as Brisbane
- The attached space to each unit is a flexible space to use as a small office, any art workshop and can be used as an extra bedroom for growing families.
- To get the most possible breeze units are shaped with the less possible width and crossed windows are provided to each space to maximise breathing

The wide stairs is not only a connection from public part of the building to the street but also it is a place for different events for different generation. It can be a place for kids to play, for young neighbours it is a place for gathering, it can be used for playing music or any other street art or simply a place for two lovers to sit and talk, or finally for an old man to sit and read his newspaper. It is a flexible place for variety activities.

In one hand as a result of modern lifestyle most of the people tend to live in high rise building and be more involve in active part of the city, on the other hand they still love to have their own garden, their own private yard and the most important they don't want miss their connection to sky.

Designing and shaping the empty space as an positive space was a critical part of this building .

The familiar shape of pitched roof house as an home, has been used in this design so people feel more they live in their own house also it gives more chance to sit next to other houses without disturbing the view of that street.
